

Everything can happen if you have an open mind

“I feel that Quant is a growing company where everything can happen, it creates great opportunities if you have you have an open mind, are driven and want to be a part of the journey”, says Daniel Forså, Group IT AX Admin at Quant. This statement is based on his own experience.

Daniel's view of Quant as an employer is based on the experience, he has acquired during his five years in Quant. Quant was founded in 2014, when it took over ABB's full-service business in industrial maintenance. Daniel says:

“Of course, it was a change going from a large employer like ABB with approximately 150,000 employees to a smaller company. Everything has its advantages and disadvantages, but personally, I enjoy being where I am now. I believe that in a company with approximately 3000 employees globally and 260 within Sweden, that it increases the chance of becoming more visible as an employee”.

Responsive and curious

Daniel is a responsive guy who likes to capture the needs of the organization. He has an education in Technology and IT design, however, it is within purchasing where he has spent most of his years at Quant. During this time, Daniel has been given the opportunity to continuously learn more about purchasing at different levels. Today, there's a new route for Daniel, moving from purchasing at Ludvika to a new role within IT Global and new educational opportunities.

“I had many different contacts within the company in my previous role, it has given me a good insight into the business. When I encountered problems, I often offered help. Since I always have had an interest in technology, it has been natural road for me to follow, together with my regular job within purchasing. I was a local Superuser for Quant's ERP system. When the organization changed and saw new opportunity I took it upon my own initiative and notified my interest to change position”, Daniel reveals.

Own initiatives give results

Daniel's initiative gave results. Today he is bursting with energy over his new created role, which will develop as needed over time. Now, Daniel is fully focused on the development and optimization of Quant's business systems and global contacts. Daniel started his new role in April 2019 and took the opportunity to impact his personnel situation as well.

Daniel says: “We've been talking about trying to live in a bigger town, but we aren't urban people, so the step to Stockholm where Quant head office is located, and the IT department has its hub is not yet relevant, but moving on to Västerås, one hour with train from Stockholm seems a good solution”.

He continues:

“The technology today makes many things possible – together with your own drive, personal goals and courage, opportunities are also created. I've felt a belief in Quant as an employer from the very beginning. I feel that there is a culture that challenges you to emphasize your own will to develop and change. It has also inspired me when I noticed other colleagues' internal careers. I am happy to be seen and that I've got the opportunity to take on new challenges. Now it is up to me to perform based on the conditions I have received and will receive. By working hard and be aware when chances come up, all possibilities are achievable”, says Daniel and ends with a smile.
